Property Details

La Casa del Doctor (the Doctor's house) is an unusual house for rural, small-town Hojancha because of its spacious interior, open floorplan and high teak ceilings, as well as very good construction values and a spacious shaded lot. A bonus is that it is a turn-key property, beautifully furnished with antique, hand-crafted and tasteful wooden furniture. The dining room table is remarkable, hand-made from the base of a Guanacaste tree. The house is also, because of its size, quality, attractiveness and location, one of the best values we have seen in the area. Its four bedrooms, each with an antique bedstead and spacious wooden closets built by the owner, provide room for an entire family, contented guests, and/or a home office. The kitchen is well-equipped and graced with ample wooden cabinets, also custom-made. A large back porch provides added attractive and comfortable living space.
